NEW QUESTION: 2
When block chaining cryptography is used, what type of code is calculated and appended to the data to ensure authenticity?
A. Message authentication code.
B. Cyclic redundancy check
C. Electronic digital signature
D. Ciphertext authentication code
Answer: A
Explanation:
The original Answer was B.
This is incorrect as cipthertext is the result not an authentication code.
"If meaningful plaintext is not automatically recognizable, a message authentication code (MAC)
can be computed and appended to the message. The computation is a function of the entire message and a secret key; it is practically impossible to find another message with the same authenticator. The receiver checks the authenticity of the message by computing the MAC using the same secret key and then verifying that the computed value is the same as the one transmitted with the message. A MAC can be used to provide authenticity for unencrypted messages as well as for encrypted ones. The National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST) has adopted a standard for computing a MAC. (It is found in Computer Data Authentication, Federal Information Processing Standards Publication (FIPS PUB) 113.)" http://www.cccure.org/Documents/HISM/637-639.html from the Handbook of Information Security Management by Micki Krause

B. Option B
C. Option C
D. Option D
Answer: B
Explanation:
Explanation
Csvde.exe is the best option to add multiple users. As you just need to export the excel spreadsheet as a csv file and make sure the parameters are correct.
You can use Csvde to import and export Active Directory data that uses the comma-separated value format.
Use a spreadsheet program such as Microsoft Excel to open this .csv file and view the header and value information.
The CSVDE is a command-line utility that can create new AD DS objects by importing information from a comma-separated value (.csv) file. This would be the least amount of administrative effort in this case especially considering that these would be temporary employees.
