You have a database named MyDatabase. You must monitor all the execution plans in XML format by using Microsoft SQL Trace. The trace must meet the following requirements:

- Capture execution plans only for queries that run the MyDatabase database.
- Filter out plans with event duration of less than or equal to 100 microseconds.
- Save trace results to a disk on the server.

You need to create the trace.

```
DECLARE @traceEventId int = 122;
DECLARE @traceColumnIdForTextData int = 1;
DECLARE @durationFilter bigint = 100
DECLARE @databaseId int;
SELECT @databaseId = DB_ID('MyDatabase');
```

Answer:

Explanation:

Explanation

The following system stored procedures are used to define and manage traces:

- * `sp_trace_create` is used to define a trace and specify an output file location as well as other options that I'll cover in the coming pages. This stored procedure returns a handle to the created trace, in the form of an integer trace ID.
- * `sp_trace_setevent` is used to add event/column combinations to traces based on the trace ID, as well as to remove them, if necessary, from traces in which they have already been defined.
- * `sp_trace_setfilter` is used to define event filters based on trace columns.
- * `sp_trace_setstatus` is called to turn on a trace, to stop a trace, and to delete a trace definition once you're done with it. Traces can be started and stopped multiple times over their lifespan.
